AN OPEN LETTER.

SALT LAKE CITY, June 21st, 1888.

I was born in the pretty little village of Underwood, Devonshire, England, in the year 1822. I remained at home and worked on the farm until I was 19 years old. The recollection of those early days are very pleasant to me as life creeps on. After leaving the farm I spent fourteen years in the English navy. In 1872 I came to America, and six years ago I came to Salt Lake. The only blight to my life, especially my boyhood days, when life should have been the brightest, was a disfigurement that I was born with, namely, cross eyes. I never will know just how much difference it has made in my life, but I know it made a great deal in my early days. On Monday of this week Dr. Prentice straightened my eyes in half a minute, without causing me any pain. Even at my age I am proud to have straight eyes for the balance of my days. I call Dr. Prentice's office at the Continental Hotel, Salt Lake City, nearly every day, and have seen him do operations without pain that are almost miraculous. It is with pleasure I add my testimony.

HENRY HONEY,
746 First South Street, East.

A Mr. HONEY, of the Eleventh Ward, 66 years of age, who has been cross-eyed all his life, had his organs of vision set perfectly straight by Dr. Prentice, at the Continental Hotel on Monday. He exhibited his eyes to a HERALD reporter Thursday, and said the operation didn't hurt him in the least.—SALT LAKE HERALD, June 22.

DEAFNESS CURED.

Madame Emma Seaman, the widow of the late Baron H. Seaman, has been deaf for some time; could not hear a watch when pressed hard against her ear. She has been under Dr. Prentice's treatment for only two weeks, and can now hear the same watch three feet from her ear. She is not only delighted but greatly astonished at the speedy and perfect results of Dr. Prentice's treatment. The Doctor says the cause of the deafness was catarrh of the internal ear. Professor Seaman will be pleased to answer any questions concerning her case at San Francisco Lodge of Elks, S. F., Cal.

Chat Roberts cured of deafness. Many more cases could be referred to but space forbids. Those wishing to see the Doctor should do so at once at Continental Hotel, Salt Lake City. Send one cent P. O. stamp for Dr. Prentice's Journal on diseases of the head.

Dr. Prentice's diplomas can be seen at his office, Continental Hotel.

SHE NEVER SAW A MARDI-GRAS.

"I have lived in New Orleans all my life, and never have seen a Mardi-Gras. From early childhood I have been troubled with bad sight, and always depended on my companions to inform me of the subject, etc., and tell me what was passing by. I had always to be the strongest kind of opera glasses in addition to my eyeglasses, procured from the leading opticians, and yet I never saw a procession of any kind to my satisfaction, or near as well as other people could, until the Momus procession of last week. I could then, for the first time in my life, read all the signs and posters, saw all the figures on the floats and the minutest detail distinctly. I could never see the music score when seated at the piano, and could not get from a sheet of music when any one else held it. I have passed friends and acquaintances on the street, never being able to distinguish them. I have sat in a street car and handed my fare to my husband and did not know him. I could have ridden all the way home with him, not knowing who he was if he did not speak. In fact, I could hardly mention the many instances of annoyance my bad sight has caused. I have tried leading oculists, and got glasses from the first opticians of the country. I have underwent constitutional treatment, took ever so many drugs, all to no purpose. I finally resigned myself to my sad fate, and thought I'd found the best of it. But at last I found perfect relief in skilful treatment and application of glasses by Dr. Prentice, and I shall never know how to express my gratitude for all he has done for me. He has most certainly given me a pair of new eyes."

Mrs. J. Z. MILLER,
612 St. Claude Street, N. O., La.

In 1885 Dr. Prentice invented and copyrighted a mathematical system for fitting spectacles or glasses which is, undoubtedly, the most accurate of any now in use. It is used in England, Holland and France. Dr. Gardner, of Chicago, says it is the true principle. Dr. Holmes says he has found it very useful. Dr. Fitch, a trustee of the Illinois Eye and Ear Infirmary, relies on it almost exclusively. With this system the most delicate and sensitive eyes can be fitted with glasses so accurately that they are relieved of all strain, and thus they soon recover their lost strength. Spectacles fitted and ground to order in this manner do not change as ordinary glasses do, but they wear for years and preserve the sight. Dr. Prentice, Continental Hotel, Salt Lake City.

A HAPPY MAN.

SANTA CRUZ, (Cal.), June 3, 1887.

Dr. Prentice, 632 Sutter Street, San Francisco—MY DEAR LECTURER:—Please allow me to congratulate you (as well as myself) on the success of your treatment in my case. As I told you when we first met two months ago, I had suffered untold agony for twenty-one years, with the Piles, often being unable to perform any manual labor for weeks at a time, being compelled to resort to morphine to deaden the pain, life seemed a burden and hardly worth living, the constant pain and irritation driving me nearly crazy. After trying many remedies without any permanent relief, I happened to see one of your advertisements and concluded to try once more, and thank the good Lord and Dr. Prentice, I am now once more a well man, and again life seems worth living. I should be glad if some of my suffering friends of Norwalk, Florida, and Scotchman, Maine, could be treated by you. Yours, with gratitude,

P. S.—At present I can be found at Spaulding's Saw Works, 17 and 19 Fremont Street, S. F.

California Fruit at Auction.

CHICAGO, June 27.—All the animation and rivalry and representative character of the national political convention were presented this morning in the line stretching to the railroad depot just across the river from where State Street and South Water, the two busiest thoroughfares in Chicago, cross one another. The honors and attention showered upon the Californians at the great national gatherings in St. Louis and Chicago, had equally their counterpart here. California, in fact, seemed the one subject in which for the time being, everybody present was interested. High piles of luscious looking fruit in boxes, bewildering in variety and extent, littered the floor of the depot in every direction. Still more fruit was pouring from heavily laden cars, drawn upon tracks beside the depot's many open doors, while on the other side of the depot through other open doors were seen swarming, yellow teamsters, with trucks and wagons, crowding each other for first place in the general onslaught evidently soon to commence. Among the stacks of boxes on the floor little groups of well dressed business men were moving, pencil and note book in hand, carefully examining and making calculations regarding the boxes that the stalwart porters about them were pulling open everywhere. Right in the midst of the rows upon rows of boxes and exactly like a miniature convention a number of chairs were ranged just in front of what looked surprisingly similar to the speaker's stand occupied by Ex-Governor White, of California, when presiding over the Democratic hosts at St. Louis, or that of the great distinguished Californian, Estee, in the gathering of Republicans at the Auditorium. There was one notable difference, no gaudy decorations were visible anywhere, and the scene, though lively in the extreme, had an aspect that bespoke business and nothing else. No horn-blowing or cheering or speech making was necessary to stir things up, and when a brisk young man mounted a stand and rapidly ordered the proceedings began instantly with a regular hop, skip and jump. It was virtually the inauguration of the auction system of handling fruit in this market, for though sales had been going on for nearly a week, the experiment was too unfamiliar to buyers in attendance to be said, until this morning, to be really under way. Heretofore one firm has had practically a monopoly, so far as Chicago and the vast territory tributary is concerned, of the entire product of the great California orchards, purchases by private sale and the result was that the traffic here was stunted almost from its birth. Generally money could be realized and profits or losses were counted by growers in California only after weeks of delay, when the final consignee, in some outlying town, had at last been rounded up, single handed, by the sales agent of the Californians in this city. Hundreds of boxes were knocked down this morning in a minute and the cash was, by the terms of the sale, available on the spot. Everything in the depot had been disposed of within half an hour, and in less than sixty minutes afterward, the money for the product was ready on demand in San Francisco banks for the growers of the Pacific slope wherever they might be located, to draw upon in an instant. Strangely enough too, there was, so far as could be ascertained, no letting down in the average prices realized by the old system. Open, hot competition from at least twenty-five different firms was the explanation. Every man knew what his neighbor was doing, and all took hold boldly, knowing as they did that no favorite was to overreach them by doing better secretly in the dark. Three cars, the total arrivals to-day, brought a gross average price of $142 per ton. A notable feature of the auction was that the sales were not confined to Chicago or the west, but large quantities were taken by agents for Canada, and even Boston, New York and Philadelphia whenever Chicagoans proper failed to grab a low-priced lot. Everyone present whose attention could be attracted for a moment was interviewed as to how they regarded the new system and what its influence would be. S. Page, a well-known dealer, happened to be the first. He was very enthusiastic. "I think," said he, "that Chicago is now going to be the market for California fruit. I have commenced issuing letters to all my correspondents soliciting trade. We can do something now and build up a trade where before the market was all but closed to us. M. Ostrag, of Ostrag & Co., who was one of the liveliest bidders on the floor, stopped long enough to say: "This year's selling one box at four dollars and a hundred at most nothing. Why, where the people have eaten one car of California fruit, they will soon eat ten. Everybody will want it when they don't have to wait for it to be rotten before they can afford to buy it. Instead of a luxury for the few it will be the staple for the many. The growers will be benefited more than anybody else, for they will get a fair average price for everything with quick returns. Similar views were expressed by representatives of Garibaldi, Cuneo & Co., F. A. Thomas & Sons, Dunler, Clapp & Doe, and many others. The firm which had a monopoly of the product of 700 California growers, Porter Bros., intimated that they at first feared it would hurt their business, but were pretty well satisfied that the enormously increased traffic which was almost certain to ensue before long, would more than compensate them.

William Still Talking.

BERLIN, June 27.—The Landtag met to-day. In the speech opening the session, King William said that his government, like that of the late King Frederick, would be exercised as a legacy from his grandfather. He would equally guard the rights of his people and the crown and protect all religions. He was gratified with the good relations existing between the State and the Catholic church. He was satisfied with the Prussian finances, and hoped that further relief of the communes and persons of small means, from taxation, would be possible. The King concluded his speech with a quotation from Frederick the great. "The King is the first servant of the State."

The opening of the Landtag was accompanied by imposing ceremonies, similar to that observed when the Reichstag met. The white hall of the old castle was again the scene of the ceremony. The King entered the hall followed by the royal Princesses. The Queen and Princesses occupied a dais to the right of the throne. The members of the two houses of the Landtag were stationed opposite the throne, the members of the upper house on the right and those of the lower house on the right side. As soon as the King arrived, the President of the upper house proposed cheers for him and they were given with enthusiasm. The King did not remove his helmet while reading his speech. The chief passages of the address were loudly applauded. When he had finished the King extended his hand to Prince Bismarck, who bowing low, kissed it. After bowing to the assembly, the King left the hall amid enthusiastic cheering.
